ACUI Clays Bowl Series Brings Together 137 Collegiate Athletes for the 2026 Fall West Coast Conference Championships

Angelo State University takes home HOA Team award this past weekend.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colorado — The 2026 Fall West Coast Conference Championships, hosted by ACUI Clay Targets in partnership with the Scholastic Clay Target Program (SCTP), concluded Sunday, November 15, at Pikes Peak Gun Club, bringing together 137 athletes representing 13 college programs for three days of competition.

Athletes competed in Trap, Doubles Trap, Skeet, Double Skeet, Sporting Clays, and Super Sporting, demonstrating the sportsmanship, dedication, and competitive tenacity that define collegiate shooting sports. As the sixth of 10 Bowl Series events, the Fall West Coast Conference Championships marks the conclusion of the 2026 fall collegiate clay target season.

“It was a pleasure to see these athletes in action this weekend,” said Taylor Blechschmid, clay targets program manager at ACUI. “Even when the conditions are tough, they never fail to impress me with their determination and spirit. Congratulation to every athlete who came out to compete!”

“Another successful weekend of competition brought together college athletes from across the region for a total of 681 event registrations. Thank you to all the programs, coaches, and athletes who continue to support collegiate shooting sports and make these events possible,” said Wayne Rasmussen, national director of the Scholastic Clay Target Program.

Interested in competing in the next Bowl Series event? Registration opens Friday, December 11, at 1 p.m. Pacific for the 2027 Spring West Coast Conference Championships, January 15–17 at Clark County Shooting Complex in Las Vegas, Nevada.

About ACUI Clay Targets

The ACUI Clay Targets program was established in 1968 and is the oldest collegiate shotgun sports program. For nearly six decades, the program has evolved from a national championship event to a robust program, offering regional events from October through March each year in addition to the ACUI Collegiate Clay Targets Championships. Association of College Unions International (ACUI) is the professional home to thousands of campus community builders around the world.

About the Scholastic Clay Target Program

SCTP provides student athletes from elementary through high school and college with the opportunity to participate in the fun and challenging sports of Trap, Skeet and Sporting Clays, as well as the Olympic disciplines of Bunker Trap and International Skeet.
